

exalt – a shift in perspective

With EXALT, VALLONE® introduces a new furniture and washbasin series defined by the deliberate shift of planes, heights and proportions.

Essen, September 2026: What happens when surfaces no longer naturally align at the same height? When basins, platforms and furniture elements shift in relation to one another? This is where EXALT begins, turning the idea of shifting into a defining design principle.

Height, position and material take center stage. Characteristic platforms structure the washbasins, recessed basins meet raised surfaces, and different planes alter the perception of proportion. Often, a subtle shift is all it takes to create a new tension between individual elements.

A SHIFT IN PERSPECTIVE.

EXALT approaches design not through the individual object, but through the relationship between its elements. Surfaces are deliberately offset, heights are varied and materials brought together. The result is a series of configurations shaped by the interplay of surface and elevation, restraint and contrast.

EXALT Furniture brings this idea together in washbasin and furniture. Available in floor-standing or wall-mounted configurations, the furniture opens up different possibilities within the space. Heights and proportions can be individually configured, shaping not only its function but the character of the entire ensemble.

TWO CONCEPTS. ONE IDEA.

EXALT translates its design language into two concepts. EXALT Furniture combines furniture and washbasin in one cohesive composition. Different heights, materials and proportions can be individually configured. EXALT Basin translates the same design approach into a standalone, wall-mounted washbasin. Made to measure, it becomes a distinct architectural element within the space. Both concepts follow the same idea: A shift in perspective.

MATERIALS IN DIALOGUE.

Materiality, too, is defined by interplay. Natural woods meet expressive marble or refined CORIAN®. Five selected real-wood finishes and shades from the VALLONE® Color Portfolio for the furniture, together with a selection of marble varieties and CORIAN® for the washbasins, open up a wide range of combinations across color, texture and surface.

The natural variation of wood and marble gives every configuration its own individual character – making each EXALT unique VALLONE® develops bathroom interiors at the intersection of design, architecture and material. Its portfolio spans bathtubs, washbasins, faucets and furniture, combining a refined design language with high-quality materials and individual configuration options.
